Preface.

In making out this record, my original design was to trace out the descendants of Abel Fairbanks [37]. After I commenced to look this out, I received from Sir Thaddeus Fairbanks, of St. Johnsbury, a genealogy made out by him some years ago, tracing our ancestral line back to 1633. I am greatly indebted to Mr. Fairbanks for this record and letters from him, giving me some valuable information. I have also received from him a pamphlet entitled "Biographical Sketches of Men of Vermont of the Nineteenth Century," by the Metropolitan Publishing Company of Boston, with a fine steel engraving of Mr. Fairbanks. This historical sketch is well worth a perusal by every young man in the land. It tells how persevering he was, the difficulties he encountered, and the obstacles he overcame. From the time when the first wooden hay-scale was sold the growth of the business has been rapid, and to-day its dimensions are enormous.

Among the descendants of Abel Fairbanks I fail to find any very marked peculiarities. I find no musical talent. In creed they are mostly Congregationalists. The various trades and occupations are fairly represented, and many of them are noted for their industrious, persevering habits, and I presume all are noted for their love of law and good order. In my travels through the West and Northwest this season, I failed to find any trace of the descendants of Rufus Fairbanks [38]. Rev. H. F. Fairbanks, of Milwaukee, thinks he descended from Jonas, the son of Jonathan, but is not positive.

Within the two hundred and fifty years from Jonathan's time, eleven generations have come upon the stage: many of them have stepped off to make room for others. The venerable Sir Thaddeus is the only one of his generation that I know of, that is living to-day.

I have not made a full record of the Fairbanks family of St. Johnsbury, as Sir Thaddeus F. and Arthur Fairbanks, his grand-son, are making out a complete record of their branch.

OF THE

FAIRBANKS FAMILY.

FIRST GENERATION.

1 JONATHAN FAIRBANKS.

The first ancestor of the American branch of the Fairbanks family was Jonathan Fairbanks, who emigrated to this country in 1633 from Somerby, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England. He made the voyage across the Atlantic in a vessel named the Speedwell. Jonathan Fairbanks, in 1636, erected a house in Dedham, Massachusetts, of so substantial and durable a character that it is still in a condition of good preservation. It has always been, throughout the more than two and a half centuries of its existence, in possession of some member of the Fairbanks family, and is now owned by a lineal descendant of the original proprietor. He d. at Dedham, Mass., 5 Dec. 1668, and by his wife Grace (—) was the father of children named as below :

 31 EBENEZER, b. June 1, 1734. See Appendix.
 32 Mary (Sanger).

SIXTH GENERATION.

- 21 ELEAZAR FAIRBANKS (Rev.) was born at Sherborn, Massachusetts, July 23, 1716. He married Prudence Cary and removed to Plainfield, Conn.; removed from there to Killingly, Conn. He died at Munson, Mass. I am not certain, but think he was a Congregationalist. Their children were:
- 33 Martha. b. at Sherborn.
 34 Prudence, b. at Sherborn May 20, 1747.
 35 Betty.
 36 Eleazar.*
 37 ABEL. b. May 12, 1754.
 38 Rufus, b. at Killingly, Conn., Oct. 20, 1759.
 39 Sarah.

* There was a Rev. Eleazar Fairbanks from Preston, Conn., who married Sarah Bigelow, and lived at Shrewsbury, Mass. For some time he was pastor of a church at Wilmington, Vt. He died at Palmyra, N. Y., in 1821. I am not certain, but think he was a son of the first Rev. Eleazar Fairbanks.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

- 37 ABEL FAIRBANKS lived at Brimfield, Mass.; married Hannah Hobbs, eighth daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Flint Hobbs. (Benjamin Hobbs was the father of fourteen children: Elizabeth, Ruth, Dinah, Daniel, Lucy, Sarah, Eunice, Susanna, Hannah, Benjamin, William, Mabel, Phebe, wife of Francis Hobbs, Rachel.) Abel Fairbanks followed the occupation of farmer and carpenter. He was a man of steady, industrious habits, fair average size, large hands, and I am told that he was a good looking man. For many years he was a member of the Congregational Church. About 1783 he removed from Brimfield, Mass., to Sharon, Vt. In 1788 or 1789 he removed to Cornish, N. H. Here he spent about forty years of his life. He died at Fairfield, Vt., at the residence of his son Benjamin, March 27, 1842. (She died at the same place April 9, 1840.) The children of Abel and Hannah were :

- 40 Chester.    b. Mar. 11, 1778. d. Nov. 15, 1803.
- 41 JOSEPH,    b. Apr. 19, 1779.
- 42 BENJAMIN, b. Mar. 9, 1781.
- 43 ABEL,        b. Nov. 22, 1782.
- 44 RUFUS,      b. June 18, 1785.
- 45 HARVEY,    b. Oct. 1, 1787.
- 46 ZABAD,     b. June 5, 1790.
- 47 BETSEY,    b. May 19, 1792.
- 48 POLLY,     b. Oct. 24, 1793.
- 49 SALLY,     b. Aug. 26, 1795.

EIGHTH GENERATION.

41 JOSEPH FAIRBANKS was born at Brimfield, Mass., d. Aug. 9, 1852. At an early day he went from Cornish, N. H., to Sheldon, Vt. There he married Abigail Smith, June 11, 1804. (She died Feb. 19, 1854.) He bought a farm, and by his industrious, economical habits he was enabled to make a valuable home for his family. From the farm house you can overlook the village of Sheldon. Their issue was :

- 50 JOSEPH,    b. Mar. 22, 1805.
- 51 Abigail,    b. Apr. 6, 1808. d. June 9, 1861.
- 52 Hannah,    b. Mar. 6, 1810, unmarried, lives with Betsey, 55.
- 53 Harri,      b. Oct. 27, 1812. d. Nov. 8, 1820.
- 54 George,    b. Dec. 21, 1814. d. Dec. 1, 1841.
- 55 BETSEY,    b. Jan. 15, 1820.
- 56 Abel,       b. Apr. 20, 1821. d. Mar. 13, 1843.

- 42 BENJAMIN FAIRBANKS, born at Brimfield, Mass.; married Laura Fuller. At an early day he settled at Fairfield, Vt., on a farm, cleared off the timber, lived there the remainder of his life; was a rather large man. He died Feb. 28, 1856. (She died Oct. 31, 1833. Children:
- 57 ELIZA FAIRBANKS, born at Fairfield March 28, 1812; married Nelson Nye May 1, 1833, and died in August, 1864; left three sons and one daughter, of whom hereafter.
- 58 Chester Fairbanks, born March 2, 1813, died July 12, 1814.
- 59 Laura Fairbanks, born at Fairfield June 12, 1815; married Elisha Sunport of Whitehall. She died Oct. 20, 1864. She left one daughter, who married Wallace Furrand. They live at Enterprise, Reno Co., Kansas.
- 60 Rufus Fairbanks, born at Fairfield Jan. 6, 1817, unmarried. He followed the occupation of surveyor. He surveyed large tracts of land in the Adirondack country. He died in Virginia 1875.
- 61 JACOB FAIRBANKS, born Oct. 1, 1818, at Fairfield, married Sarah Hendrick Jan. 27, 1852. (She born May 24, 1819.) He is a mechanic, lives at Sheldon, Vt., and has children, of whom hereafter.
- 62 CLINTON FAIRBANKS, born May 9, 1820, at Fairfield, married Betsey Hendrick. (She was born Nov. 13, 1827.) He is a farmer, lives at Enosburgh Falls, Vt. Of whom hereafter.
- 63 Rhoda Fairbanks, b. Feb. 1, 1826, married Harlow Hickok. She died leaving two sons, both killed in the army.
- 64 Harvey Fairbanks, b. at Fairfield, Vt., Sept. 11, 1830, never married, went west in 1855, and died there in 1880. Was a doctor.
- 43 ABEL FAIRBANKS was born at Brimfield, Mass., married Betsey Rice, no children. He was a cooper by trade. The last nine years of his life he spent with Clinton Fairbanks at Fairfield, and died there March 16, 1866.

44 RUFUS FAIRBANKS was born at Sharon, Vt., married Sarah J. Wakefield of Newport, N. H., Dec. 2, 1819. He was a farmer of steady, industrious habits, had blue eyes, brown hair, large hands and high instep. He was a member of the Congregational Church. He died at Cornish, N. H., Feb. 16, 1863. (She was born March 26, 1785. and died at Cornish March 15, 1871.) Children :

- 65 SARAH JANE,            b. Dec. 4, 1820.
 66 CHESTER MASON,      b. Sep. 30, 1822.

 68 HARRIETT NEWELL, b. Jan. 2, 1828, d. Aug. 8, 1852.

45 HARVEY FAIRBANKS, born at Sharon, Vermont, married Lois Hall, Jan. 23, 1816. (She was born at Cornish, N. H., May 2, 1792, died Jan. 9, 1872, at Homer.) He moved from Cornish to Homer, N. Y. in the winter of 1816, settled on a farm heavily timbered; by perseverance and industry he cleared up his farm, and lived many years to enjoy the fruits of his labor. He was a great reader and kept well informed of the current events of the day, was liberal in his views and always had respect for the opinions of others. He was a consistent member of the Congregational Church at Homer for nearly sixty years. He died Sept. 16, 1877, honored and respected by all who knew him. Some years before his death he commenced a paper entitled "Recollections of the Last Century." Although I regret it was never finished, perhaps it may be of some interest to us as it is.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE LAST CENTURY.

I have thought it might be interesting to some persons to read an account of some things that transpired eighty years ago in New England, in the valley of the Connecticut River.

I will commence with early school-days, to show the contrast in the advantages that young people have at the present day over those of the last century. At the time I commenced going to school, books were very scarce and but few branches were taught; those were reading, spelling, writing and arithmetic. There were no maps nor blackboards and I think there were no slates, but I remember ciphering on white birch bark, a species of birch very plenty in that section. They used quill pens and ruled the paper with a lead plummet, and made their own ink. I went to school barefoot one or two winters, but did not have far to go. I well remember of a boy going across the Connecticut River on the ice to school. I heard a man say he had seen him many a cold morning running across, and would stop occasionally, raise one foot, shake it, then run again a spell, then catch up the other and shake it. His name was Zebina Curtiss. He afterwards became General, and one of the most prominent merchants of Windsor, Vermont.

Reading matter was very scarce at that time. There was but one newspaper printed anywhere in that section; that was Spooner's Vermont Journal, about half the size of the Homer Republican, which circulated pretty extensively in the northern part of Vermont and New Hampshire, carried on horseback. I do not remember that I ever saw a city paper until I was twenty years old or more.

Although scholars were limited in the number of their studies, I am inclined to think that what they did study they got more perfect than they do at the present time, especially spelling and writing. There were no academies in that part of the country at that time.

The country where I lived was rather new and quite stony. The inhabitants mostly got their living by agriculture, and were most of them rather poor, consequently were under the necessity of being industrious and economical in their mode of living. They had but few of the luxuries of life except what they raised themselves. The women were good housekeepers, industrious and frugal, carded, spun and wove most of the cloth that was worn in the family. The girls were taught to do housework and spin. There were no carding machines then, so the women had to card their wool and tow themselves with hand cards, and most of the cloth was made up as it came from the loom. Sometimes part of the yarn would be colored and wove striped.

Their mode of living was plain and simple: but very little tea or coffee was used except pea coffee; for supper, bread and milk or pudding and milk or bean porridge were invariably eaten. Their houses were small, of but one story, without paint, and poorly lighted, with a big fire place and brick oven to bake the pork and beans and rye and Indian bread.

Farmers kept one horse; very few had more than one. Horses were used for the saddle. I remember when I was ten to fourteen years old, going to mill many a time on horseback four or five miles on top of two or three bags of grain. Women were in the habit of riding horseback in those days. They would ride to meeting alone or behind their husbands on a pillow. I have known them to ride a hundred miles or more horseback on a visit. Sometimes a man would carry his wife behind and one or two children in his lap. Wagons were almost unknown but carts and sleds were used for drawing loads.

Wages were low at that time; men got from eight to twelve dollars per month and girls got fifty cents per week, and laid up money. Money was reckoned in pounds, shillings and pence. That was before our government began to coin money. I think I remember coppers as they were in use stamped George III. Congress passed a law regulating the currency in the time of Mr. Jefferson, I think, but I do not remember the year. Sixteen and two-thirds cents made a shilling and six shillings a dollar.

tory seven years, married John B. Parker October 14, 1873.
They live on a farm at Beatrice, Nebraska; devoted Sunday school workers. She as well as her brothers knows something of pioneer life. I admire the spirit of the young men and women that say good bye to their friends and the home of their childhood, and push off into the far West.
There they will build up a home for themselves, make good citizens, and be a blessing to the country: Children :

244 Frank Latta Fairbanks, born at Ithaca Dec. 16, 1884.

Some years ago Frank Latta, only child of E. M. and Louisa Latta, was riding horseback down East State street, Ithaca, his pony became unmanageable and threw him violently against a farm wagon. He was carried to his father's house and died two days after. A few years later Herbert Fairbanks and the young man's mother met in the city for the first time, and she saw in him a striking resemblance to her unfortunate son; and from that day an intimate friendship has grown up between them, and his little boy bears the name of Frank Latta Fairbanks.

147 THOMAS C. FAIRBANKS, born at Homer, went to Waseca, Minn., in the spring of 1884, unmarried, is half owner of 330 acres in the famous spring wheat belt of the northwest, industrious and of good habits; has displayed a good deal of mechanical skill. The west and northwest to-day are calling for more young men of this stamp to come and settle within her borders, and help to develop its vast resources.

150 FRANK FAIRBANKS, born June 15, 1845, married Mary Walker at Saybrook, Ohio. Children :

THE COTTAGE ON THE HILL.

Written on the Old Fairbanks Homestead in Cornish, N. H.

BY GEORGE E. FAIRBANKS (130).

I turn my thoughts to years gone by,
To scenes that long have passed;
I think how quickly time doth fly.
How very, very fast.
But now one pleasant place of earth
The halls of memory fill;
It is the old home of my birth,
The cottage on the hill.
My father's father labored here,
His father cleared the soil;
And fertile fields and forests dear
He made by honest toil.
He built a pleasant cottage here,
And though 'tis standing still,
A hundred years has older grown
The cottage on the hill.
Old home! from out thy humble door
Four generations passed,
And though thy work on earth is o'er,
Thy memory long shall last.
And the race there sheltered be
An honor to thee still,
And oft in tender visions see
The cottage on the hill.
The doors are off the hinges now,
The windows—they are gone;
No youthful hand with spade or plow
Disturbs the grassy lawn.
The wind blows through the open door,
And seems to whisper still
The songs that graced in days of yore
The cottage on the hill.

I look upon this lonely pile
Of dark and grimy wood,
And think it strange so long a while
The wear of time it stood,
But now 'tis falling to decay,
Its destiny to fill;
Like all our works doth pass away
The cottage on the hill.
